THE SAND OF AN OLD TIMER.

Fatal Bravery That Won a Rare Tribute From a Band of Apaches.

A company of ranchmen sat about the railroad station in Pomona the other afternoon waiting for the belated overland train for Los Angeles. Every man in the party knew the others, and there being an hour or two to wait story telling of the early days on the border and in Arizona and California came natural. Stories of old times, when Indians were bad and the white pioneers knew what bravery meant, were related. John Wilson of El Monte told the most absorbing story of the hour:

"Talk about sand in a man, gentlemen! I am telling you that it takes sand of the genuine article in any man to try and stand off single handed 40 or 50 Apaches when he knows just how the scrap will end, and that the end will be his own death. But that was just the kind of sand that was in Felix Knox when he was killed by the Apaches. You see Knox was an all round gambler, such as the tenderfoot from the east scorns so much and knows so little about, but he had a heart in him bigger than any tenderfoot's head. Well, it was in the spring of 1879 Knox, with his wife and baby and a Mexican driver, was coming from Silver City to Clifton, down in Arizona. They got to York's ranch, which is on the Gila river, about 30 miles from Clifton, all right, but were told there that signs of Apaches had been seen, and that they had better go in camp there for a few days, but Knox—who had fought the Apaches dozens of times and didn't know what fear was—said he wanted to make Clifton that day. Indians or no Indians.

"Well, the Knoxes drove on. When they were about two miles from York's ranch, sure enough a big buck Indian came from behind a low, round top mesa. Knox knew there were plenty more of the red devils hid there and that it meant a fight to death for him. He was as cool as a cucumber. He jumped out of the wagon, filled his pockets with two boxes of cartridges, and then kissed his wife and baby for the last time, but saying that he would have the redskins quieted in a few minutes. He ordered the Mexican driver to lash the team for all he was worth and to drive back to York's ranch as fast as the horses could jump. Then Knox waved his hand to his wife and said he was going to stand off a few Apaches, although he was sure there was a big band of them. As the team and wagon flew back to the ranch Knox, rifle in hand, started toward the hill for his last fight. He turned once and waved his sombrero to his wife and child and then strode on to his certain death.

"The Apaches a second later rushed out from behind the hill where they were secreted. Knox faced his foes, and standing stock still pumped lead at them until he fell down dead. The next day a party of us was made up, and we went out where the fight took place. Knox's body lay there amid the cactus in the sun. The Apaches, contrary to their usual custom, had not mutilated the fellow's body in the least. They had taken a clean pocket handkerchief out of Knox's pocket and carefully spread it over his face and had fastened it there by putting a small stone on each corner of it to hold it in its place and keep the hot sun from the dead man's face. That was their tribute to the sand in Knox. Seventy empty shells were found that had been emptied from Knox's winchester, and one of the raiding Indians afterward said that their party numbered 42 and that Knox had killed seven of them."—Pomona Progress.

The Servant Was Horrified.

Dr. S. had a newly arrived Hibernian for a servant. He had also recently purchased a pair of porpoise leather boots. His wife, attracted by the novelty of the new footwear, asked the doctor in the presence of the servant what they were made of, to which he responded, "Porpoise hide."

Shortly after the lady from the Emerald Isle interviewed Mrs. S. and announced her intention of "laving whin me week is up." Mrs. S., somewhat surprised, asked the disturbed domestic the reason for her announced departure, to which Bridget responded with a horrified air:

"Your husband is a docther, mum, an I've heard them docthers do be cuttin up people, an didn't I hear um wid me own ears say that the boots of him were made of panper's hide. It's me own ould father that died in the poorhouse, an I wouldn't be servin a haythen that uses the skin of the poor to cover his dirthy feet wid."—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

Better Left Unsaid.

A certain young poet is equally famous in the world of letters as an author and among his friends for his blunt candor that is forever betraying him into one of the things one would have preferred to say differently, as Du Maurier puts it. On his last birthday he was given a charming dinner by his doting parents, at which he was bitterly disappointed by the regret of several notables. Thus, when a society girl said to him at the close of the evening, "What a delightful time we have had!" he exclaimed from the fullness of his heart: "I'm glad it hasn't seemed dull to you. We invited some awfully clever people, but not one of them came!"—Philadelphia Press.

Pensions For Workingmen In Austria.

Under the provisions of the Austrian poor law, at 60 years of age a man may claim from his native town or commune a pension equal to one-third of the daily wages which he had received during his working years. The amount varies from 2 to 6 florins a month. In Vienna alone there are 16,000 persons who receive these pensions from the city.

AN AIR CYCLE NEXT.

THAT IS WHAT'S WANTED BEFORE THE FLYING MACHINE.

The Bicycle No Longer Satisfies the Longing of Mankind For Free Movement. We Want to Travel as the Birds Do, but Must Learn Essential Lessons First.

The Frenchman who covered the dead walls of Paris with calls for subscriptions to a Society of Aviation, to start with a capital of 500,000 francs, may have been lacking in the highest qualities of public spirit. He was placed in jail for taking money for his little private flying machines, costing from $500 to $2,000, which he failed to deliver. But his merit lies in discovering the want that fills the breasts of a large number of men today. It is only the somewhat headlong method of gratifying that yearning which has interfered for a time with his locomotion. Had he but had the forethought to invent, to beg or to borrow a fairly efficient flying machine, nothing short of a cage would now prevent him from taking a leave as French as himself.

Though he should languish for the rest of his days in prison, M. Delprat will have the glory of the discovery that the bicycle no longer satisfies the longing of mankind toward a freer movement over the face of land and water. If we are to believe the evolutionists, man is the result of gradual aspiration, from the worm that walloweth on a portion of its anatomy unsuited to ears polite, through the many footed, the four footed and four handed beasts, up to the natural lord of creation who runs perpendicular on two feet. The present century has seen man become what the old legends would have termed the "whirling one foot." Why should not this progress continue and the next century find man rising from that single pied a terre into more or less sustained aviation?

The flying machine still holding to earth by one wheel has already appeared sporadically in England, according to Engineering. Mr. Philipps published the results of his trial of a machine resting on a light car and claims that he flew, but the front wheel of the car never left the ground. This is quite as it should be. We creep before we walk, we graduate from tricycle to bicycle, and now we are at the unicycle age. Who is the man to lift us finally clear of the earth?

The principle of the balloon, useful as it is in overcoming gravity, has carried generations of inventors into a fool's paradise.

Birds are lighter than beasts, but they are not soap bubbles. And to the bird we have to return indirectly or directly for lessons in the navigation of the air. The aeroplane, in which our able aviators are now reposing so much confidence, but upon which they take care not to repose their own brittle bodies, is the result of a study of the soaring of birds. Latterly it has been reasoned out that individual feathers have a powerful influence in supporting the bird in air. So the aeroplanes are made not solid, but with slats, and in some cases jointed in sections, so that while one portion is in one plane another may be tilted up or down to get the lifting power of a change of angle. This power is so great that our leading aviators, like Hiram Maxim and Professor Langley, expect to obtain great velocities if they can once get their airships under way and under control.

The money spent by these inventors and investigators is mounting to a great sum, but who shall say it is wasted, considering the benefits to accrue? The remark attributed to Giffard when dying, that he would not reveal the secret of his airship because "he thought he saw the air ensanguined by war as the seas have been, and the earth," need not disturb us. If he did say that, he was temporarily in a state of weakness, for the flying machine will do more than anything yet invented to break down the prejudices of one nation for another. Wars are the result of such prejudices carefully inflamed by ambitious men, and while the aviation is not going to stop all wars it will surely reduce them to a minimum.

More important than such machines as Lieutenants Renard and Krebs successfully steered from Meudon to the walls of Paris and back again are the small flying machines developed from the bicycle, which seem now about to make their appearance. The bicycle with electric motor is invented. Now comes the turn of a combination of bicycle and aviator which shall permit the rider to leave earth and skim along for 100 yards or so without detriment to himself or his machine. By way of these inventions will come the discovery, step by step, of means and methods of sustaining flight for longer periods and also the actual training in motion through the air which is now wanting to mankind.

The inventors who are constructing on paper or in actuality great flying machines are like men of an inland race who have for the first time seen a broad piece of water. Before learning to paddle a canoe they are already building a frigate; before understanding the principle of the steam engine they are setting to work to make an ocean steamer. What is wanted is a popular air cycle, an "air safety," to lead the way to larger air wagons with sustained flight. Who will invent one?—New York Times.

An Old Pacific Coast Engine.

Perhaps few of the people know that a very antique engine is lying useless behind the station at Long Beach, Los Angeles county. This engine was used in the early part of the last decade, and when the fireman wanted to put in any fuel the train had to be stopped while the fireman put in wood at the front of the engine, as the door of the furnace is situated there. This engine ran between Los Angeles and Long Beach before the Southern Pacific extended its line to that place. The cars are like street cars of today, only about twice as long. Sometimes the passengers had to get out and push, as the engine was not very strong.—Pa...

Championed by a Gamin.

A ragged, barefooted boy, a crossing sweeper, had doffed his cap to the Duchess of Sutherland in the hope of recognition, when he observed a well dressed but rakish looking man following her across the street, as if trying to force upon her attentions that were evidently obnoxious to her. There was a look of distress on the duchess' face.

"Scuse me, lady," said a boy's voice beside her, "shall I punch 'is 'ead?"

She turned, looked down angrily upon the little sweeper, and then said, smiling: "Why, it's Jemmie!"

She had remembered his name after all, and at that moment the boy was hers, body and soul. Without waiting for another word he dashed off and turned a sort of violent "cartwheel" so adroitly calculated that he landed with two very muddy feet in the middle of the offensive man's waistcoat.

Then, before the man could recover from the shock, the boy had slapped him with one muddy hand across the mouth and with the other had deposited a handful of the filthy compound on the back of his neck.

The next moment the boy was in the grasp of a policeman, who dragged him away to the nearest police station. He was just being charged by the constable with having committed an assault when the duchess entered. She spoke kindly to the gamin and then explained the affair to the inspector on duty.

At her request the boy was set at liberty, and he said only long enough to say to the inspector:

"It's the lady what nursed me when the cab run over me leg."—London Cor. New York Tribune.

Hints About Driving.

When driving, you must watch the road. Turn out for stones, so that the horse shall not stumble nor the wheels jolt over them; avoid the mudholes and places where the going is bad; let the horse slacken speed when the road becomes heavy, and if you want to make up time do it where the ground slightly descends.

It is a common mistake to think that a horse can haul a carriage easily on the level. On such a road he has to be pulling every moment; there is no rest. Whereas when the road now rises and now falls the weight is taken off him at times, and he has a chance to recover his wind and to rest his muscles. As between a level road in a valley and an up and down road over the hills, the latter is by far the easier for a horse to travel. When you come to a long level stretch, let your horse walk a bit in the middle of it.

Almost everybody knows that for the first few miles after coming out of the stable a horse should be driven slowly, and especially if he has just been fed. On a journey it is of the utmost importance to observe this rule. Be careful, however, not to check a young nag too quickly when he comes fresh out of the stable. Give him his head, talk to him soothingly, and presently he will come down to a moderate pace. If you pull him up at once, you vex him extremely, so much so that he is not unlikely to kick.—Harper's Young People.

When Booth Saved Young Lincoln's Life.

It was at Bowling Green, Ky., during the summer of 1867. Edwin Booth stood upon a platform waiting for a train; so, too, did a man unknown to the actor. Buried in thought, this stranger left the platform to walk upon the track, not noticing an approaching engine. One moment more and there would have been an indistinguishable corpse. Silently, suddenly, Edwin Booth seized this stranger and lifted him almost bodily upon the platform. So close came the engine that it struck the stranger's heels as they left the track. "Do you know who that man is?" asked Mr. Ford, the well known manager of Baltimore, who witnessed the thrilling scene.

"No," replied Booth.

"Robert Lincoln, President Lincoln's son."

This was the most satisfactory incident in Edwin Booth's life. Sensitive as a woman, he suffered untold tortures for the mad deed of his brother. He had voted for Abraham Lincoln as president and never voted before or after.—Kate Field's Washington.

Materialism Against Wit.

Some things of course in the French display—especially of pottery and bronzes—are purely decorative, and some of the visitors of course are destitute of taste. The consequence is that occasionally a person will come along who will gaze at objects of transcendent artistic merit with no feeling but one of mystery and curiosity. So it happened the other day, when a simple minded woman stopped for awhile in front of one of a pair of vases 5 feet high, the price of which is $5,000.

She gazed at it attentively for a few moments and then said dryly to M. Melaile, who stood by, "Pray, what is that for?"

The Frenchman took her measure at a glance and replied with elaborate politeness, "That is intended to boil eggs in, madam."—Chicago Tribune.

Making the Most of His Chances.

The family tutor was invited to a grand dinner party by his employers and surveyed with intense satisfaction the half dozen wineglasses arranged in front of his plate. The footman came round with the wine. The young man presented the smallest of the glasses.

"It is vin ordinaire," observed the waiter.

"Ah, precisely," replied our ascetic philosopher. "I am reserving the larger glasses for the finer sorts."—Chronique Bourgeoise.

THE following yill show, says an exchange, how easy it is during the present stringency of the money maket of this country, to inaugurate a run on a bank and force it to close its doors although it is in a perfect solvent condition: "A lady presented a check at the counter of the Farmers' and Merchant's Bank of Minneapolis, after banking hours; the clerk looked at the clock and said: "It's too late." The old lady went out and spread the news that the bank had failed and when the doors were opened next morning, over one hundred depositors were in line with checks in hand. The result was a run on the bank that broke it.

COUNTY ITEMS.

Phil. G. Schloch has been engaged for some days in pruning the young trees in the orchard of Alex McMeans on the south side of Santa Rosa Creek. Mr. Schluch has a thorough, practical and theoretical knowledge of the art of pruning, acquired in a three years apprenticeship in Germany, and twenty years of work and observation of the effect of pruning.—Democrat.

Peter Kohler, a German laborer living at Bloomfield, has been sent to the Napa Insane Asylum. His one and only mania seems to be that of marriage. He had made up his mind to wed as soon as he could get a matrimonial stake. When asked his idea of a respectable matrimonial stake he replied that a few dollars and a cow were all that was needed to make home happy.

Andrew Theodore Davidson, owner of the Preston plaining mills near Cloverdale, was drowned in Russian River last Saturday afternoon while swimming. He was in the water with two small boys and being taken with cramps sank before help could be secured. He was thirty years old and unmarried. The Coroner's jury, presided over by Justice Connor of Cloverdale, found that he came to his death by accidental drowning.—Santa Rosa Republican.

John Bailiff has invented a very useful and ingenious combination sled wagon for hauling wood or logs down a steep grade. Going down hill it acts as a sled with brake attachment, and comes down the steepest slopes with an even and uniform movement. The brake, by an ingenious device, operates with a resisting force proportionate to the grade. Going up hill the sled moves on wheels, offering the least possible resistance to the ascent. Mr. Bailiff's invention is now largely used in the lumber camps in Humboldt. Mr. Bailiff has just constructed one of the sleds for use in hauling logs out of a timber claim on Mark West Creek.—Santa Rosa Democrat.

An Indian cutting scrape occurred near Healdsburg Monday morning. The injured person is Bell Ross, the notorious Indian woman, who was once the wife of Dave Ross, the Indian now in San Quentin. Since Dave went to prison his wife married again and her present husband swore that if she ever "went for him like she did for Dave," meaning if she ever fought him, she would not get off so well as she did the time Dave cut her. They got into a fight Monday and the husband gave her some terrific cuts across the back and fled. The woman thinking she would die, crawled to Grant's Station to tell who had injured her. She was very weak when she arrived and may not recover. Her husband has not been captured yet.

Thursday and balance of session—New and unfinished business.

Rule 3—Every petition, bill, claim, remonstrance or other written application intended to be presented to the Board must be filed with the Clerk not later than the last Saturday preceding the first Monday in each and every month.

Passed by the Board of Supervisors at a meeting held July 17th, 1893.

The roll was called on the motion for the adoption of the rules and resulted as follows: Ayes, Supervisors Joost, Sales, Thompson, Hall, Mead, chairman.

Of Interest to Subscribers.

The following are the decisions of the United States Court on the subject of newspaper subscribers:

1. Subscribers who do not give express orders to the contrary are considered as wishing to renew their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their periodicals, the publisher may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the postoffice to which they are directed, they are responsible until they have settled their bills and ordered them discontinued.

4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher and the papers are sent to the former address they are held responsible.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take out periodicals from the office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facia evidence of international fraud.

6. If subscribers pay in advance they are bound to give notice at the end of the time if they do not wish to continue taking it; otherwise the publisher is authorized to send it and the subscriber will be responsible until an express notice, with payment of all arrearages, is sent to the publisher.

The latest postal laws are such that newspaper publishers can arrest anyone for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under this law the man who allows his subscription to run along for some time unpaid and then orders it discontinued or orders the postmaster to mark it refused, and have postal cards sent notifying the publisher, leaves himself liable to arrest and fine, the same as for theft.

How is This?

Something unique even in these days of mammoth premium offers, it is the latest effort of Stafford's Magazine, a New York monthly of home and general reading.

The proposition is to send the Magazine one year for one dollar, the regular subscription price; and in addition to send each subscriber fifty-two complete novels during the twelve months: one each week.

Think of it. You receive a new and complete novel, by mail, post paid, every week for fifty-two weeks, and in addition you get the magazine once a month, for twelve months, all for one dollar. It is an offer which the publishers can only afford to make in the confident expectations of getting a hundred thousand new subscribers. Among the authors in the coming series are, Wilkie Collins, Walter Besant, Mrs. Oliphant, Mary Cecil Hay, Florence Marryat, Anthony Trollope, A. Conan Doyle, Miss Braddon, Captain Marryat, Miss Thackery and Jules Verne. If you wish to take advantage of this unusual opportunity, send one dollar for Stafford's Magazine, one year. Your first copy of the magazine and your first number of the fifty-two novels (one each week) which you are to receive during the year will be sent you by return mail. Remit by P. O. Gentlemen: I take pleasure in informing you of the very beneficial results which have followed the use of DR. MILES' RESTORATIVE NERVINE in the case of myself and wife. For a year I was subject to a distressing pain at the base of the brain and upper portion of the spinal cord. I lost flesh and was greatly troubled with sleeplessness. Your Nervine was highly recommended to me. My case had been so obstinate that I had no confidence in the efficacy of any medicine. Yet as a last resort I consented to give it a trial. Much to my surprise, I experienced marked benefit; my sleeplessness disappeared, my headache was removed; my spirits and general health greatly improved. I SOON GAINED TWENTY POUNDS. ALL THIS OCCURRED AFTER LEARNED AND WELL KNOWN PHYSICIANS HAD FAILED. My wife is taking the Nervine with the best of results. LOUIS D. VANDERVERE.

The Mid-Winter Fair promises to be a grand success. Subscriptions continue to pour in from all quarters in San Francisco. When the interior of the State is called upon to contribute its share toward making the exhibit a success our people should not be backward in giving according to their means. Poppe; Petaluma, John Merritt; Santa Rosa, Jonathan Roberts.

Wine Prospect.

It is estimated that there are now in stock in this State 16,500,000 gallons of wine. Wine has been shipped out of the State during the last six months at the rate of 1,100,000 gallons a month and the local consumption is about 500,000 gallons monthly. On this basis there will be on hand when the next vintage commences about 10,000,000 gallons. This is the smallest stock on hand at the commencement of the season for any year since 1886, and the outlook for good prices is therefore excellent. The yield for the season is estimated at from 13,000,000 to 15,000,000 gallons.—Rural Press.

The Sonoma County Editors.

We regret our inability, on account of sickness, to attend the meeting of Sonoma county editors at Santa Rosa last Monday, which was held for the purpose of considing what action should be taken by the people of the county in regard to the forthcoming Mid-Winter Fair in San Francisco and to discuss the public road question. The following editors were present: Samuel Cassidy, Petaluma Argus; W. A. Selkirk, Petaluma Imprint; John Michaelson, Petaluma Courier; R. A. Thompson, Santa Rosa Democrat; A. B. Lemmon, Santa Republican; E. D. Sweetzer, Sonoma County Farmer; E. S. Fyfe, Sebastopol Times.

The meeting was called to order by A. B. Lemmon. R. A. Thompson was elected President and E. S. Fyfe Secretary. After naming the new organization the Sonoma County Press Club, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That we as representatives of the Sonoma county press heartily approve of the movement to hold a Mid-Winter Fair in San Francisco, and will co-operate to secure a creditable exhibit of the resources of our county thereat, provided suitable accommodations, free of cost to this county, shall be afforded for making such exhibit.

WHEREAS, It has been recommended by the Executive Committee of the Mid-winter Fair that the Supervisors of each county in this State appoint three commissioners to represent their respective counties to co-operate with said Executive Committee in preparation for said fair,

Resolved, That our Supervisors are respectfully urged to appoint three commissioners to represent Sonoma county as suggested.

Resolved, That we learn with pleasure that the Horticultural Society and the granges of this county have intimated measures for representation of their products at the Mid-winter Fair, and hereby assure them of our hearty co-operation in any efforts they may make with that end in view. Believing that a creditable exhibit of agricultural and horticultural productions will greatly "aid in or carry on the work of inducing immigration," into this county, we respectfully urge upon the Supervisors an appropriation of $1,000 under the provisions of Section 37 of the county government act to be used exclusively in making such exhibit.

Resolved, That the State Road Convention called to meet at Sacramento September 7, has our hearty endorsement and that we call on all the bodies in Sonoma county invited to select delegations thereto to take action at once and report as requested.

THAT NEW CITY HALL.

What's the Matter with the Plaza, the Streets and a Better Water Service.

ED. INDEX-TRIBUNE—Sir:

Permit me through the columns of your paper to express a few thoughts on Sonoma City matters. Our present Board of Trustees are possessed of the laudable ambition of desiring to do something which will make their administration memorable and honored. With this end in view they have invited plans, specifications and bids for the construction of a new City Hall not to exceed in cost $2,500. The chief argument in support of their present course is the pressing need of a Jail and the desire to build one that will not prove a death trap like the former one, wherein two tramps were burned to death several months ago.

To do this properly will require quite an outlay, and the Trustees believe that since the present edifice is no ornament to our Plaza the best and most economical plan is to erect at once a building that will accommodate all departments of the city government.

While I freely admit that such a building, if a suitable one can be erected for the sum mentioned that will not prove an eye-sore, will be a distinct improvement, the question presents itself: Is this the best use (aside from first-class water works calling for bonds) to which we can put municipal revenue?

It seems to me that much work could be done on our streets, that street lamps could be erected and that more work could be done to keep the trees in the Plaza alive. These are things which when done would make the citizens and taxpayers feel that they were getting their money's worth and also make residence in our town more desirable.

Good streets are the first requisite. Many of our streets are rut holes in summer and quagmires in winter. Let us have the streets passable at all seasons before we branch off into cheap and unsatisfactory architecture.

Let us continue to agitate for more and better water facilities. The present water company seems to think that the people of Sonoma will forever be satisfied with promises that they are going to do better.

If we had a good water supply the saving in insurance rates would more than equal the amount of extra taxes necessary to meet the interest on the bonds.

I believe the Trustees are trying to do right. If they called a public meeting to discuss these propositions they could then discover the sentiment of the community.

I am glad we have a progressive Board, but let their progress be in the direction that will do each citizen the most good.

Trusting that this may be of some service to our town,

Truly Yours,
SKOPTOS.

INVITING OLD AGE.

SOME OF THE WAYS IN WHICH WOMEN LOSE THEIR YOUTH.

Mothers Neglect Their Own Needs In Exaggerated Devotion to the Children. Those Who Claim the Immunities of Age When Only In the Midday of Life.

The oldest woman I ever knew was 28. At marriage the graces of girlhood passed forever from her life. Economy became the god enthroned on every altar of her home. Ruffles and ribbons were the insignia of levity and extravagance. Dresses robbed of a yard or two grew ungracefully short and narrow. Books and papers were regarded as luxuries—not necessities. An hour spent in reading left a feeling of guilt for wasted time. Devotion to "Will and the children" came to mean self assumed slavery. Luster left the eye, elasticity the frame. Through a mistaken sense of duty she grew unkempt, narrow souled, repulsive. It has been said that the true age is what we look and feel. I have known sweet, fresh faced women of 70 who were younger than she.

In the great middle class of America the wife too often invites age by concentrating all ambition in money getting. To save the wages of servants she destroys the joy of life, the buoyancy of health. Pushing the growing daughter to the front, she sees less and less of society, dresses with increasing plainness and sinks to a household drudge, self made and valued at her own estimate.

Thirty-five has no more right to the styles and tone of 70 than to those of 17. The appropriation of the one is scarcely less ridiculous than the assumption of the other. Far better than the expensive boarding school is the example of the mother in imparting to the daughter the faultless taste of dress, the gentle repose of manner, the gracious spirit so admirable in woman. A part of the money devoted to the education of the daughter would be well spent in procuring to the mother the time for self culture. As the fair, snowy page is not so useful or beautiful as the one written with pure, uplifting thought, so the immature maiden is less valuable to home and society than the ripe, cultured woman.

People of 40 and 50 should not shelve themselves and claim the immunities of age. They are in the midday of life; the time for the exercise of knowledge, power, grace and beauty, for the uplifting of humanity. These gifts may be enhanced by dress and manner. The influence of the attractive, self respecting wife, mother, sister or friend is more potent for good than that of the one with neglected person and unlovely mind.

Discontent invites age. Indulging the unrest of the dissatisfied is destructive to look and temper. In his "Story of a Country Town" Mr. E. W. Howe says, "Be contented if it kills you." The advice is not so bad as it looks. Contentment and stagnation are not necessarily synonymous. One may be free from worry while striving for higher planes or work. Woman should have the courage of repose. It is infinitely better than the morbid conscientiousness that goads to endless toil. Effective work requires effective rest.

Judicious mental work may help to lift one out of the ruts of premature old age. Read and think of what you read. Don't use your mind as if it were a sieve and you were trying to see how much you could pour through it. There is a belief extant that knowledge, if gained at all, must be acquired in youth. Fallacious theory! Behold Galilei at threescore and ten pursuing his studies with unflagging zeal, Cato beginning Greek when advanced in years, Ogilby commencing classical studies when past 50! Gladstone is as much the student today as when the bloom of youth mantled his cheek.

Be kind to the feelings and fancies of youth. If they prove perennial, so much the better. Don't forbid yourself glad, recreative thought and action. Don't be ashamed to make yourself as pretty as you can. A sensible woman may feel a thrill of pleasure innocent as a maiden's when receiving a glance of respectful admiration from a manly man. Smile without affectation, be pleasant without being silly—in short, be young as long as you can.—Alva Rosse in Kate Field's Washington.

Cradles Hundreds of Years Ago.

In manuscripts of the ninth and tenth centuries we had pictures of cradles formed of part of a tree trunk dug out, with holes bored through the sides for the passage of straps intended to tie the baby down in his bed. These dug out cradles are still common in modern Greece. When we come to consult the manuscripts and bas-reliefs of the fifteenth century, we notice that the cradles are no longer mere baskets or beds on rockers, but little swinging beds suspended between two pillars, the prototype of the modern berceonnette.—Harper's Bazar

Yes, It Is Strictly Grammatical.

"By his death the community loses the foremost and the best of American actors, and one of the greatest tragedians that have ever lived."

An Author's Apology.

A clever story whose hero is a young rector speaks of his removing his "biretta" during a protracted walk. "I wantonly put it on his head," says the author, with a laugh. "I knew he ought not to roam the country in that headgear, but it was so becoming that I let him do it."—New York Times.

Boy—I laid awake so long las' night I couldn't wake up.

THE NILE'S OVERFLOW.

A Description of "One of the Most Exhilarating Sights In Nature."

Perhaps there is not in nature a more exhilarating sight or more strongly exciting to confidence in God than the rise of the Nile. Day by day and night by night its turbid tide sweeps onward majestically over the parched sands of the waste, howling wilderness. Almost hourly, as we slowly ascended it before the etesian wind, we heard the thundering fall of some mud bank and saw by the rush of all animated nature to the spot that the Nile had overleaped another obstruction, and that its bounding waters were diffusing life and joy through another desert.

There are few impressions I ever received upon the remembrance of which I dwell with more pleasure than that of seeing the first burst of the Nile into one of the great channels of its annual overflow.

All nature shouts for joy. The men, the children, the buffaloes, gambol in its refreshing waters, the broad waves sparkle with shoals of fish, and fowl of every wing flutter over them in clouds. Nor is this jubilee of nature confined to the higher orders of creation. The moment the sand becomes moistened by the approach of the fertilizing waters it is literally alive with insects innumerable. It is impossible to stand by the side of one of these noble streams, to see it every moment sweeping away some obstruction to its majestic course and widening as it flows, without feeling the heart to expand with love and joy and confidence in the great Author of this annual miracle of mercy.

The effects of the inundation, as Osburn shows, exhibit themselves in a scene of fertility and beauty such as will scarcely be found in another country at any season of the year. The vivid green of the springing corn, the groves of pomegranate trees ablaze with the rich scarlet of their blossoms, the fresh breeze laden with the perfumes of gardens of roses and orange thickets, every tree and every shrub covered with sweet scented flowers—these are a few of the natural beauties that welcome the stranger to the land of Ham. There is considerable sameness in them, it is true, for he would observe little variety in the trees and plants, whether he first entered Egypt by the gardens of Alexandria or the plain of Assuan. Yet it is the same everywhere only because it would be impossible to make any addition to the sweetness of the odors, the brilliancy of the colors or the exquisite beauty of the many forms of vegetable life in the midst of which he wanders. It is monotonous, but it is the monotony of paradise.

The flood reaches Cairo on a day closely approximating to that of the summer solstice. It attains its greatest height and begins to decline near the autumnal equinox. By the winter solstice the Nile has again subsided within its banks and resumed its blue color. Seedtime has occurred in this interval. The year in Egypt divides itself into three seasons—four months of sowing and growth, corresponding nearly with our November, December, January and February; four months of harvest, from March to June, the four months of the inundation completing the cycle.

A Dog's Long Journey.

The account of a dog finding its way to its old home, say 20 or 40 miles, although not formerly knowing the road, is nothing very unusual, but when the distance reaches some 200 miles the event is worth notice. The following remarkable return of a fox terrier is absolutely true:

A minister in a southern parish in Dumfrieshire, Scotland, had a fox terrier sent him by rail from a friend near Elgin, Morayshire. After being kept captive a few days it was let loose. No sooner did it find itself at liberty than it forthwith disappeared, nor could any trace of it be found.

Judge of the surprise of the Morayshire people on seeing it walk in one morning. It was evidently tired out, for it lay down near the fire, and it was some time before it was able to taste food. On exchange of letters it was found that it had been just seven days traversing the distance, which, as the crow flies, is little short of 200 miles. How it made its way to its old home is a mystery, but still an indisputable fact.—Harper's Young People.

ALAMEDA, CAL., Jan., '93. XII

My wife was troubled with nervousness about one year before she took Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic, and at that time had very severe attacks of spasm convulsion, and pains in different parts of the body; when in this state her lower jaws would act violently and set sometimes, bite her tongue, breathe heavily, then short, then seemed to stop entirely, get a wild look in her eyes and rolling around, then stop sometimes; it would take two men to hold her in bed others so her body would cramp and be so for two hours. She took but two bottles of the Nerve Tonic, which cured her entirely of all these torments, which myself and wife gladly testify it truly had the desired effect. D. S. M'GILLIS.

Mrs. Ester Devilbiss, 354 S. Tenth street, San Jose, Cal., writes, October 1892: Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic has indeed done wonders in my part of the country. There has been bought in my neighborhood over $25 worth.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STOCKTON, CAL., Dec. 19th, '92.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,

Gentlemen:—Having read one of your Treatise on the Horse and seeing the Spavin Cure advertised, I thought I would try it. I had one horse with a prominent Spavin of 12 months standing. I removed it with ½ bottle. I tied up one fore foot on same side the spavin was and compelling the horse to rest on lame leg while I took a surcingle and drew it across the hock or spavin till the hock or spavin got very warm with the friction, then putting on Spavin Cure. I had a mare that had a running from her nose for 12 or 14 months. I rubbed the Spavin Cure from her eyes down to nostrils, then from back of jaw bone down under the throat for a week. I have not seen any discharge for two months.

Yours truly, HUGH McDADE.
